Decisions on whether the Department for Education (DfE) releases personal data to third parties are subject to a strict approval process and based on a detailed assessment of public benefit, proportionality, legal underpinning and strict information security standards.

The DfE provides a formal process for external organisations to apply for access to certain types of personal data it holds. Depending on the nature of the request, access may be provided through the Office for National Statistics Secure Research Service (ONS SRS), the UK Data Service (UKDS), or directly by the DfE where data cannot be shared via those routes. Applicants must demonstrate a clear purpose, satisfy security and lawful basis requirements, and comply with the DfE's data sharing arrangements. More information about how organisations can apply for DfE-held personal data, including the available routes and eligibility criteria, is available at:
